REMARKS.

In presenting this our report of the schools for the past year, we would say that the schools have been a success, some of them decidedly so. And with the small amount of money appropriated, we think the improvement all that could be expected. Two hundred fifty-seven dollars and fourteen cents to be divided between seven divisions, with twenty-two dollars and twenty-five cents deducted for miscellaneous expenses, leaves thirty-three dollars and fifty-five cents and a fraction to each division for the year. To put it mild, a very stingy amount. But we tried to do the best we could for the good of the scholars, by having the terms so arranged that they could go in two divisions, with the exception of four or five scholars so situated that the distance would not permit of their attending only in their own division.

Now we would suggest that there be a liberal amount of money appropriated, and try and help the school board to consolidate the schools so as to give the children of Orange a reasonable amount of schooling. And we would also say that there is a great need of a change in the school books, as many of the books now in use are very poor, and if the series now in use are still kept, there will have to be quite a good many new books. But we think there should be a change in the reading books and arithmetics at least, as we call them far from being up to the standard at the present time, as no scholar can learn near as well with dull and uninteresting books as they can with interesting and instructive ones. As the old books can be exchanged for new ones at a very small cost, we would suggest a change. Don't feel that a few dollars expended in the educating of the youth is money mis-spent, for if there is any worldly blessing to be bestowed upon the youth, it is an education.

And we would also say to parents, make it your business to see that your children are regular at school and in good season. Never keep your scholars at home to work during the term of school if it can possibly be avoided, or because they feel that they rather not go. We often think we wish parents took interest enough in the youth to visit the school and acquaint themselves with the mode of instruction imparted to the scholars, and cause the teacher to see that you are interested in the school.

And now with many wishes for the welfare and good of the scholars and schools of Orange, we leave these few suggestions with you.
